ON A RUNAWAY TRAIN.

"In the summer of '78 I was promoted to passenger engine 49, the same we are in now. It was, and is still, one of the fastest engines on this line. The road had been built only four or five years, but was already doing a good freight and passenger business.

"The division that I ran over was a long one—a hundred and twenty miles. The "boys" called it the ridge, because it was up-grade from both ends to nearly the middle. The grade was pretty heavy for a part of the way, so when there happened to be a long train an extra engine, called the 'helper,' was ordered out to help the regular engine up the grade. At the top was a tank and a side track where the 'helpers' uncoupled. It was the duty of 49 to take the west-bound express over this division.

"One evening there happened to be several coaches of excursionists beside the regular train, and consequently an extra engine, but not the regular 'helper,' as it happened, had been ordered up to help me over the grade. I felt rather uneasy when I saw 'No. 14' back down and couple in front of me.

"No. 14 was a very good engine, as good as any one on the road for power, weight and speed, but she was in charge of an engineer whom I distrusted, Dick Rogers, a large heavy-built and head-strong man, much too fond of liquor. He went on his 'sprees' when off duty, and so had been allowed to keep his place; but it was whispered among the 'boys' that he had had touches of tremens already.

"You can never quite trust a man with an appetite for liquor; put that down in black and white.

"I became more uneasy when I mounted Dick's engine to talk a minute and compare watches; for I detected the smell of whiskey in his breath, and saw that his face was red and his eyes blood shot.

"At length 'All aboard!' was given, the gong struck, and we pulled out. Side-tracks, streets, houses and signal lights were soon passed. As we got out on the main line, we quickened speed and soon were going up the grade at a rate of about thirty miles an hour.

"The west-bound express made but two stops in the entire distance to the 'summit.' We made these all right on time. Everything was working as well as usual. It had grown dark; and as the forward engine prevented my seeing the track ahead, I leaned back after a time on my cushion. My own son, Johnny, was firing for me then.

"Poor boy! He was only nineteen. I didn't want him to go on the road, but he begged so hard that I took him on to fire for me. Well, I sat watching him as he now and then replenished the fire, and listening to the drum-like sound of the exhaust. You know that noise, so unvaried and continuous, tends to quiet and benumb the senses. I must have sat so for a minute or two.

"Suddenly, Johnny called out to me: 'Ain't you running faster than usual, father?' he shouted.

"I started and looked out. The engine was swaying violently; and though I could see but little in the darkness, I knew that we were on the level stretch and getting near the side track, at the summit where No. 14 was to unhook from us.

"What did Dick mean by not slowing up? I at once shut off, then sprang on the air brake.

"There was a rapid slackening of speed, for a few minutes—then a sharp and a shrill hiss!

"The rubber hose had burst; the vacum brakes were useless and, the speed at once quickening again, we went tearing past the side track, and entered on the long stretch of down grade beyond, where, with the patent brake burst, the effort of both engines would be needed to stop or hold the train.

"Angry and astonished that Rogers could be so utterly careless, I bade Johnny set the tender brakes, and opened the front window of the cab, to shout to the foolhardy man ahead. Meantime the train conductor, or some one else, was pulling furiously at the bell-cord from the rear of the train. The instant I had opened the sash I knew by the sound of the forward engine that she was plunging ahead under full pressure of steam. Twice I shouted, at the top of my lungs.

"But the roar was too heavy. Then I whistled 'down brakes.' As if in response, a wild laugh rose from the front engine; then a jar seemed to go through the train; and I felt we were going faster than ever. I blew again—louder and longer than before. This time it was answered by three shrieks from the other whistle, followed by a number of the most awful yells that ever came out of a human throat!

"I knew then what was the cause of the reckless speech. Rogers was drunk, crazy drunk, and was running away with us down a seventy-foot grade! And we were powerless to stop him!

"What a situation. Yet this was not the worst! As we had not stopped at the summit, we were now running ahead of time, and were liable to run into a train coming up the line. It was of no use to reverse my engine against the whole force of the train, and that of the other engine besides. Once more I blew the signal for 'down brakes.'

"Just then a light shone ahead. It was the lamp of the station where we usually passed an up-freight. The head light of the freight was not there! For an instant I felt faint and sick. I saw the danger from which it seemed there could be no escape. The freight usually reached the station before we did; but we were so much ahead of time that it had not arriyed. Yet it could not be very far away, and with our heavy train running at lightning speeed, crowded with passengers as it was, a collision must occur!

"For an instant I felt paralyzed Then it occurred to me that perhaps the freight might be a little behind time, and possibly had not yet passed the next station below. That was our only chance for life. With trembling hands I tore a leaf out of my memorandum book, and upon it wrote:

"For heaven's sake, clear the line! We've lost control of the train—Williams."

"Wadding this up with a lump of coal in my handkercnief, I had just time to throw is as we swept by the telegraph office at the station. By good luck it hit the door, and I saw it open as we rushed out of sight. If the freight had not yet passed the next station below, it could be ordered to the side track there, and so clear the road for us.

"Just then, through the open window, I saw Rogers' fireman—a slight little fellow—coming along the running-board beside the boiler of our engine.

"For God's sake!" he cried—though I could scarcely hear him above the roar—"Stop her! stop her! Rogers is blind drunk! He'll kill us all!"

"I saw now that our only chance for life was to board Rogers' engine, overpower him and get control of it. It was a life and death business. But one man had better die than a whole trainful.

"By this time the conductor and brakeman had come forward. but were so excited and alarmed that they were good for nothing to help me. They clung to the platform-rail of the express car, behind the tender, and shouted: "Stop her! stop her!"

"Boys," I said to Johnny and Jim (Rogers' fireman), "we must get aboard that other engine and knock Rogers down. Take the coal sledges and come after me."

"The prospect of a hand-to-hand conflict with a madman was a terrible one. But I dared not stop to think of my own chances. The heavy bar which reached from my own engine to the other was about six feet long, and the only way to cross over was to get astride the bar and slide along on it. I led the way, first throwing my wrench over on the tender; then I cautiously got down on the bar and began to work my way across. It was a desperate act, and the tremendous swaying and jerking nearly threw me off several times. But I kept a tight grip on the bar and got across, climbed up the tender, and made my way across the coal.

"There stood Rogers, steadying himself, as the locomotive leaped and bounded on, with his back to me. He had not seen me; and I determined to wait an instant till he opened the fire-door again, then knock him down and tie him—for I was no match for him physically. I heard nothing of Johnny or Jim, but dared not turn to look for them.

"Suddenly, as I stood there poising myself to spring on Rogers, we swept like lightning around the curve and—Merciful Heaven! Less than a mile down the track gleamed the headlight of the freight.

"Rogers saw it, too, and the awful danger broke through the crazing spell of the liquor. With a strange, scared cry he settled back upon his cushion limp and helpless.

"But I scarcely noticed him. There was not a moment, even for disabling him. With one bound I was in the cab and blew the whistle, then threw back the reversing lever. The shock of the reverse steam almost lifted the engine from the track and me from my seat. The big drivers spinning around on the rails looked like circles of living fire, and enveloped the engine in a perfect shower of sparks. Nobly now did old 14 struggle and groan, as if herself conscious of the terrible danger.

"'Twas vain! As well we might have tried to stop an avalanche or oppose a flood. Nearer and nearer we came to that dreaded light.

"Onward we drove, and in another moment I saw that to stop was impossible, that the collision would come. Instinctly I closed the throttle and turned to jump. Then I thought of those I was leaving to their awful fate. If I stuck to my post, I could perhaps lessen the shock and save many lives—even if I lost my own. Better one home desolate than a score, and again I threw back the reversing lever, bracing myself to meet the shock, when suddenly, I saw the headlight deflect—dart to one side!

"Could it be?

"Yes, praised be God for His mercy to us that night, the freight was going on the side-track at L station; and seeing the danger its engineer had barely time to quicken up and get his train off the main line when, with diminished speed, we ran by.

"To stop the train and pull Rogers off the engine was my first duty. This done I went back to my own engine, which I found in charge of Jim alone. "Where's Johnnie?" was my first anxious question.

"Alas! the hardest blow was still in store for me. Johnny, poor boy, in trying to cross, on the connecting bar, to help me overpower Rogers, had been thrown off. I knew in a moment that he must have been killed; for we were running seventy miles an hour. I was obliged to go on. But two hours later the station- folks found him, seven miles back, lying mangled and dead at the foot of some rocks a few yards from the track."

Why the Drummer was not Drumming.

Among the stories told at the Twenty-fifth reunion was the following good one: One of the drummers, while the regiment was on the move, had a penchant for foraging on his own account, and the chickens had to roost high to escape his far-reaching hands. Whenever night overtook them this drummer had a good supper provided for himself. On one occasion he had raked in a couple of turkeys and had put them into his drum for convenience in carrying. When the regiment was halted for the night, the colonel immediately ordered dress parade, and the drummers were expected to beat up. The forager made his drumsticks go, but the quick-eyed colonel noticed that he was not drumming.

"Adjutant," said the colonel, "that man isn't drumming. Why ain't he drumming?"

The adjutant stepped up to him, saying, "Why ain't you drumming?"

"Because, said the quick-witted drummer, "I have got two turkeys in my drum, and one of 'em is for the colonel."

The adjutant went back and the colonel asked, "What is it?"

"Why, he says he has got two turkeys in his drum, and one of 'em is for the colonel."

Up to this point the conversation had been carried on sotto voice, but when the adjutant reported, the colonel raised his voice so that all could hear, "What! Sick is he? Why didn't he say so before? Send him to his tent at once."

A Saloon Keeper's Gains.

"I have made a thousand dollars during the last three months," said a saloon keeper, boastfully, to a crowd of his townsmen.

"You have made more than that," quietly remarked a listener.

"What is that?" was the quick response.

"You have made wretched homes—women and children sick and weary of life. You have made my two sons drunkards," continued the speaker, with trembling earnestness; "You made the younger of the two so drunk that he fell and injured himself for life. You have made their mother a broken hearted woman. Oh yes, you have made much—more than I can reckon up, but you'll get the full count some day—you'll get it some time!"

A Chinese Compositor.

A Chinese compositor can not sit at his case as our printers do, but must walk from one case to another constantly, as the characters needed cover such a large number that they can not be put into anything like the space used in the English newspaper office. In setting up an ordinary piece of manuscript the Chinese printer will waltz up and down the room for a few moments and then go down stairs for a line of lower case. Then he takes the elevator and goes up into the third story after some caps, and then out into the woodshed after a handful of astonishers. The successful Chinese compositor dosen't need to be so very intelligent but he must be a good pedestrian. He may work and walk around over the building all day to set up a stickful, and then half the people in this country couldn't read it after, all.

An Army Experience.

How an Old Veteran Escaped Annihilation and Lived to Impart a Warning to Others.

A pleasing occurence which has just come to our notice in connection with the New York state meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic is so unusual in many respects that we venture to reproduce it for the benefit of our readers.

Captain Alfred Rensom, of New York, while pacing in the lobby of the armory, previous to one of the meetings, suddenly stopped and scanned the face of a gentleman who was in earnest conversation with one of the Grand Army officers. It seemed to him that he had seen that face before, partially obscured by the smoke of battle, and yet this bright and pleasant countenance could not be the same pale, and death like visage, which he so dimly remembered.

But the recollection, like banquo's ghost, would not "down" at command and haunted him the entire day. On the day following he again saw the same countenance, and ventured to speak to its owner. The instant the two veterans heard each other's voices, that instant they recognized and called each other by name. Their faces and forms had changed, but their voices were the same. The man whom Captain Rensom had recognized was Mr. W. K. Sage, of St. Johns, Mich., a veteran of the 23d N. Y. Light Artillery and both members of Burnside's famous expedition to North Carolina. After the first greeting was over, Captain Rensom said:

"It hardly seems possible, Sage, to see you in this condition, for I thought you must have been dead long ago."

"Yes, I do not doubt it, for if I am not mistaken, when we last met I was occupying a couch in the hospital, a victim of 'Yellow Jack' in its worst form."

"I remember. The war seems to have caused much misery since its close than when it was in progress," replied the Captain. "I met old comrades frequently who are suffering terribly, not so much from old wounds as from the malarial poisons which ruined their constitutions."

"I think so myself. When the war closed I returned home and at times I would feel well, but every few weeks that confounded 'all-gone' feeling would come upon me again. My nervous system, which was shattered in the service, failed me entirely and produced one of the worst possible cases of nervous dyspepsia. Most of the time I had no appetite; then again I would become ravenously hungry, but the minute I sat down to eat I loathed food. My skin was dry and parched, my flesh loose and flabby. I could hold nothing on my stomach for days at a time, and what little I did eat failed to assimilate. I was easily fatigued; my mind was depressed; I was cross and irritable and many a night my heart would pain me so I could not sleep, and when I did I had horrid dreams and frightful nightmares. Of course, these things came on one by one, each worse than the other. My breath was foul, my tongue was coated, my teeth decayed. I had terrific headaches which would leave my nervous system completely shattered. In fact my existence, since the war, has been a living death, from which I have often prayed for release."

"Couldn't the old surgeon do you any good?"

"I wrote him and he treated me, but like every other doctor, failed. They all said my nerve was gone and without that to build upon I could not get well. When I was at my worst, piles of the severest nature came upon me. Then my liver gave out and without the use of cathartics I could not move my bowels at all. My blood got like a stream of fire and seemed literally to burn me alive."

"Well you might better have died in battle, quick and without ceremony."

"How many times I have wished I had died the day we captured Newberne!"

"And yet you are now the picture of health."

"And the picture is taken from life. I am in perfect condition. My nerve tone is restored, my stomach reinvigorated, my flesh is hard and healthy; in fact I have new blood, new energy and a new lease of life wholly as the result of using Warner's Tippecanoe. This remarkable preparation, which I consider the finest tonic and stomach restorer in the world has overcome all the evil influences of malaria, all the poison of the army, all traces of dyspepsia, all mal-assimilation of food, and indeed made a new man of me."

The Captain remained silent for a while evidently musing over his recollections of the part. While he again raised his head he said:

"It would be a godsend if all the veterans who have suffered so intensely and also all others in the land who are enduring so much misery could know of your experience, Sage, and the way by which you have been restored."

And that is why the above conversation is recounted.

Couldn't Fool the City Editor.

"Would you be kind enough to publish a notice of our Sunday school?" asked a grave gentleman of the city editor of the Brooklin Eagle. "And you might incidentally speak of me as the superintendent." "Certainly," replied the city editor, opening his note book. "What is the amount?" "I should think half a column enough," replied the grave man. "Oh! I don't begrudge the space; but how much will cover the total loss?" "I don't understand you," said the grave man. "Well, when did the directors make the discovery?" exclaimed the city editor, impatiently. "Did you confess? or did they examine the books?" "I am at a loss to know what you mean. I am the superintendent of a Sabbath school, and I'd like a notice in your Sunday issue," explained the grave man. "How am I going to write a notice without the facts?" demanded the city editor. "I want the name of the bank, the amount of the loss, the way it was discovered, and the amount of your bond. Give me those and I can fill in about your being prostrated by the blow and the surprise to a large circle of friends." "I greatly fear that we are at cross purposes," said the grave man, mildly. "I am a respectable citizen!" "Ah," exclaimed the city editor. "That's one point. Never ever suspected before. Always led a life of probity and was the trusted custodian of untold wealth. Fell in an evil hour. How much? What's the amount of your last defalcation?" "My good sir," protested the grave man, "you entirely misapprehend me I am not a defaulter!" "Not a defaulter!" ejaculated the city editor, leaning back in astonishment. "What are you clamoring around here after a notice for? Git now!" and the city editor grabbed the grave man by the collar and elbow and shoved him down stairs. "Who was he?" asked the managing editor. "A snide!" retorted the ruffled city editor. "He came around here trying to play himself off for a Sunday school superintendent, when he didn't know the first principles of the racket. He may act it off on some young man, but he couldn't play it on me for a cent!"

HUMOROUS.

There are numerous new styles of parasols displayed this Spring, but all will be worn just high enough to take out the eyes of reckless pedestrians.

"There is a sudden advance in leather," remarked the youth who dived out of the front door as the irate parent's boot reached after him.

'Mr. Jones,' said little Johnnie to that gentleman, who was making an afternoon call, 'can whisky talk!' 'No, my, child, how ever can you ask such a question!' 'Oh! nothing, only ma said whisky was beginning to tell on you.'

It was getting very, very late, but the rash young man with a rich tenor voice begged her to name one more song. 'Then sing 'The morning's freshly breaking, away, away, away!" He didn't know the song, but acted at once on her timely suggestion.

'Yes, sir,' said the politician to the caucus manipulator, 'the office should seek the man, and not the man the office.'

'Yes, sir.'

'I didn't like your prayer very much this morning,' said a deacon to the minister.

'No?' answered the minister, 'and what was the matter with it?'

'Well, in the first place, it was too long, and aside from this it contained two or three expressions which I thought were scarcely warranted.'

'I am sorry, deacon,' the good man responded, 'but it might be well to bear in mind that the prayer wasn't addressed to you.'

Once upon a time a traveller arrived at a hotel and found all the rooms engaged. Here was a sad case. But his ready wit did not desert him. He went into the gentleman's room, and standing in the middle of the floor, said: Gentlemen, I am glad to see so many of you here to-night. I am a book agent, and I want to show you—" Before he could utter another word, the whole company had taken to the woods, and he had his choice of apartments.

A Mistaken Theory.

It is a general idea that if a child has a fall striking its head, and shows tendency to sleep thereafter, every effort must be made to keep it awake. Now, according to one of our best physicians this theory is a mistaken one, and much harm is done in trying to prevent sleep. Rest is what the brain of the sufferer wants more than anything else, and what might have passed off in a few hours, may result in inflamation and terminate in death. Do not feel frightened, mothers, if your boy rolls down stairs, bumps his head with force, and then shows a disposition to sleep; lay him on the bed, loosen his clothes, and apply thin cloths wet with witch hazel or water to his head. Keep his feet and limbs warm with irons, or bottles filled with hot water. Darken the room, and keep it as quiet as possible, and when the doctor comes nature will have aided him in his treatment by her "sweet restorer," sleep.

Preaching and Practice.

'See here, Mr. Blank, what are you going out to-night for?' asked Mrs. B. with a threatening look.

'Big political meeting to-night,' explained Mr. B. apologetically.

'Political meeting, eh?' echoed Mrs. B. 'You have been going to political meetings every night for five weeks, and if it had not been for me you would have worn your boots to bed every time.'

'But just think how nice it woule be if I should get nominated for something! Think of the loads of money I could rake in and the nice furniture and new clothes and sealskin sacques and—'

'That will do,' interupted Mrs. B 'I have heard that before. You made a speech last night at a ward meeting I see.'

'Yes,' responded Mr. B., with pardonable pride.

'And I see by the two or three lines notice of it in the newspaper that the burden of your remarks was 'the office should seek the man and not the man the office.' Now, you just take off that overcoat; sit right down, and if any office comes and knocks I will let it in.'

He sat.

Preparing for the Convention.

CHICAGO, May 24.—When the Democratic national committee met in February a resolution was adopted authorizing Chairman Barnum to appoint a sub-committee of five to take charge of the preparations for the National Democratic Convention. He has just announced the committee as follows: William C. Goudy, Illinois; W. L. Scott, Pennsylvania; M. M. Ham, Iowa; W. F. Villas, Wisconsin; Austin H. Brown, Indiana. The committee will hold a session in this city within the next two weeks.

FERDINAND WARD, the broken Wall street gambler, occupies a room in the jail at present, wondering if he shall have to go to Sing Sing. A fellow who obtains millions of dollars on all kinds of pretenses is certainly a fit candidate for the penitentiary. If he goes he may be followed by some of his fellow swindlers.

Arranging for the Encampment.

On Friday evening Governor Pattison, Generals Beaver, Siegfried, Hartranft and Snowden, with their staffs; Adjutant General Guthrie, Assistant Adjutant General Hassinger, Inspector General Goddard, Colonel Hutchinson, chief of artillery, and other notables in state military circles left Harrisburg for Carlisle. At that point the party embarked on a special train for Gettysburg, where they made the necessary arrangements for the encampment of the National Guard of Pennsylvania in August. The camping ground were gone over, the headquarters of the various officers located and the plan of encampment generally made out. This year the three brigades will go into camp together as at Lewistown year before last.

Butler in the Field.

The Lowell Statesman Willing to Become President.

NEW YORK, May 22.—General Benjamin F. Butler, who was nominated by the national anti-monopoly organization for president of the United States at their late state convention, has accepted the nomination and sent his letter of acceptance and thanks to the headquarters of the association.

INGERSOLL says it looks "very blue" for Blaine. Yes, about as blue for Blaine in the presidential race, as black for Bob in religious respects.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27th, 1884.

When Mr. MacVeagh writes such a letter to Mr. Bristow as Mr. Bristow has received from Mr. MacVeagh, and when Mr. George Bliss causes to be published such a letter as he wrote to Mr. Arthur when Mr. Arthur held the throttle valve of New York politics, you may depend upon it there is going to be some lively shaking up among the distinguished parvenus in the Republican household. Bliss is the same fellow whom Brewster employed to prosecute the Star Route thives to a triumphant acquittal, for which the Government paid him $150 per day, trayelling expenses, hotel fare, and a couple pleasure drives. He knows all about Arthur, but he don't want to tell as much now, as he was disposed to tell four years ago. The upshot of this little quarrel is going to be a great big one, because the half-breed portion of the family haye had the cold shoulder of Arthur during three long years. What with Blaine and his immense boom, Logan with his boomlet, and Edmunds with a sort of boom-eranglet, I hardly think that Arthur is going to worry through. They and their friends are not firing blank cartridges at Arthur just now, but each means business for himself. The National News Bureau here, the largest concern of its kind in the country, holds correspondence with several thousands of the leading daily and weekly newspapers in the United States. I had an interview with its manager to-day, who told me that in response to a circular that the Bureau issued a month ago, he had received replies from a majority of them. The almost unanimous sentiment from Democratic editors was for Tilden and the old Ticket, and rightening the wrong of 1876. Upon the question of tariff they seem about equally divided between free trade outright and a tariff for revenue only, with now and then a spurt of protection from the Eastern press. On the Republican side of the house the sentiment of the editorial fraternity was overwhelmingly for Blaine, with the proclivities of the Eastern newspapers divided up between Edmunds, Arthur and Lincoln. Not a few of the Democratic newspapers are mentioning the name of Roswell P. Flower, of New York, whose chances from this standpoint are quite as good as were those of James K. Polk, at this time of the year forty years ago.

The death of Sam Ward, the noted Washington lobbyist, revives many recollections of the career of one whose connection with the lobby and intimacy with public men, had resulted in more vicious legislation in the past twenty-five years than had ever before been got ten through since the foundation of the Government. It may be said that he was the foster-parent of every one of the land grant subsides—measures that were prepared in the interest of railroads alone and as now appears, were intended specially to throttle the Government. Sam was a power here during Mr. Johnson's administration, and Welcker's tables nightly, during a session of Congress, were surrounded by the Senators and Representatives whom Sam had invited to partake of his layish hospitality, knowing that the affectual way of getting a Congressional job done thoroughly, was through a direct appeal to the Congressional stomach. I am sorry to say that Sam's example in the way of big dinners is still followed, and by them a great deal of official rascality is hidden from public gaze.

The knowing ones at the capitol say that Congress will be ready to adjourn and go home about the 15th of June. If it does there will be a larger amount of necessary legislation left undone than ever before. So far the House has passed but 191 bills out of more than 7,000 introduced and the business now on the Speaker's table would send the session clear into August. The Senate has done little better than the House, having passed 226 bills, and left lying over 2,167 for the next session.

Congress has got into the business of erecting public buildings at this session by wholesale. So far no less than 67 have been ordered, ranging in price from $50,000 to $2,500,000, and the end is not yet. But there are some things about this public building business that should be ventilated, and this very week two bills were adopted in the Senate that never should have been. One is the giving of $250,000 for the new custom house at Portland, Oregon, a place of 30,000 inhabitants, which already has a building that cost the Government $200,000. The other is the appropriation of $100,000 for a public building at Saratoga, a little watering-place of 10,000 population, which has not half the need of a public building of this cost that it has for missionaries during the gambling season. PHONO.

George's Valley Clippings.

A heavy thunder shower passed through here on last Friday evening.

Samuel Harter's house is up and ready for the plasterers. Mr. Wingard is doing the plaster work.

Geo. Gentzel's barn was raised last Friday under difficulties—the carpenters not being ready at the appointed time and hands being scarce.

Contractor Coldren is through with the three railroad bridges above Spring Mills and has the contract for all the other bridges along the line.

Our farmers are all done planting corn—next in order is work on the roads. They are alm ost impassible.

Gregg township has no candidates out yet for sheriff. We have some good men, who would have fair chances.

Prof. Baney of Madisonburg was through here last week with his magic lantern. The people appeared to be pleased with the show. Prof. B. explains everything to the letter.

Mr. Garey is still on the sicklist with no perceptible improvement.

Peter Auman, Sr., of the mountains, is also in a precarious condition with little chance for recovery.

William Ripkas' horse died very suddenly last Sunday.

Our Sunday school numbered 139 last Sunday.

Rev. Fisher delivered an able sermon last Sunday afternoon to his congregation. CLIPPER.

—Druggist Eisenhuth reports a rapidly growing demand for McDonald's worm powders.

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, MAY 29TH, 1884.

Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

—Decoration day to-morrow.

—The Millheim schools close this week.

—Buzzing flies are doing a tickling business.

—Pay the printer and have a clear conscience.

—Croquet playing is hugely enjoyed by our young folks.

—Mrs. A. J. Harter is off on a visit to her parents at Swengle.

—A letter from E. E. Bressler, former pedagogue at Coburn, appears in another column.

—Miss Sallie Stamm, from Logansville is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Jacob Gephart of this place.

—Mr. Samuel Frank of Rebersburg publishes the administrator's notice for Jacob Steffee's estate.

—They say that Venor predicts some more cold weather for July. He ought to be tapped on the head.

FOR SALE.—About one thousand feet of Dry Linn Boards. Inquire at this office. W.

—Hon. W. K. Alexander, of Linden Hall, spent a few days in Millheim among his relations and friends this week.

—C. W. Albright gives proof of his mechanical skill in the renovated buggy of H. J. Kurzenknabe. A first-class job.

—One of the most pleasant occupations at this season is a walk or ride to the country to take a good look at beautiful nature.

—Mrs. J. F. Harter followed her husband's example and went off also. She went to Altoona to pay a visit to relatives there.

—Last week's Lewisburg Saturday News contains a large cut, giving a fair illustration of the extensive New Buffalo Mills at that place.

—It is a gratifying thing to know that the manufacture and sale of the toy pistol has been prohibited. It has cost the lives of many boys.

—Under the head of announcements on the second page of the JOURNAL our readers will find the name of S. K. Faust as a candidate for sheriff.

—Mr. D. M. Neidigh, of Ferguson township, gave us a call on Saturday. He announces himself as a candidate for sheriff in this week's JOURNAL.

—Messers. Joe Emrick, Wm. Holmes, Howard Hurd and Irvin Winkleman, four gentlemen from Nittany Hall, paid a flying visit to Millheim on Sunday.

—The way our merchants are laying in goods they must expect to do a lively business this season. Glad to see it—there is some encouragement in the fact.

—Dr. J. F. Harter and J. H. Kreamer are off to Erie this week. Don't know when they will be back; they didn't give much satisfaction on that point.

—Mr. Thomas Frank in company with one of his brothers started for Ohio on Tuesday morning, expecting to stay for some time and see the country and friends.

—Lamey's saw mill south of town is about completed and in a few days the "hum" of the circular saws and the "puff" of the engine will be heard in that direction.

—Mr. H. Long, of D. S. Kaufman & Co., removed his family to Millheim last Monday and makes his "home and hearth" in Deshler's brick tenement house on Penn street.

—Harter's tannery at Hartleton was totally destroyed by fire on Wednesday of last week. Loss about $4000, actual in surance $2000. The fire originated in the engine house.

—A party of about twenty-five young people from Aaronsburg took a trip to Cherry Run last Thursday, to spend the day in fishing. They had fine weather and a splendid time.

—George J. and John E. Kurzenknabe, who have been assisting at the concert last Saturday, departed for Harrisburg on Monday. Their many friends hope to see them come back again.

—C. W. Hartman expects to adorn his property on Penn Street by a new a portico at the front of his house. Wesley has ambition enough to keep up with the improvement spirit of our burg.

—Why is it that Zeigler's bakery has such a large trade? Because the bread and cakes baked there cannot be excelled anywhere. Mrs. Zeigler is making a fine record as an experienced and skillful baker.

—OH! OH! This howling, jumping, raging toothache! I would give anything for relief. Well; it won't cost you much. 15 cents will get you a bottle of the Great Zingari Toothache Drops, Guaranteed. For toothache and neuralgia the Great Zingari have no equal. Keep them in the house, they may save you hours of agony. Sold by Jacob Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—Mr. Geo. K. Weber, of Dempseytown, Venango Co., Pa., was in town a few days last week. He is the father of James Weber, who at one time worked for Samuel Albright, dec'd., at blacksmithing.

—The proceeds of last Saturday's concert amounted to $43.55. The expenses of the entertainment sum up $16.35 leaving $27.20 net proceeds, which divided among the four schools makes each share $6.80.

—J. W. Snook put up a bright street light in front of his store on Main street. No trouble now to find the crossing in dark nights. We hope some more of our citizens will take the notion to help to light up the town.

—The first quarterly meeting of the M. E. Church will be held at Spring Mills, May 31st. Quarterly conference at 2 p. m. Preaching on Saturday evening and Sunday morning at 10½ o'clock by Rev. J. H. McGarrah.

—We hear that several white skirts were stolen from some of our ladies, who left them lay on the grass over night last week. The thief would better take to the outskirts of town, if he or she would prefer to escape the argus eyes of the victims.

—Mr. David Shartzer, an old citizen of Penn township, this county, died last Saturday morning. As far as we know he was an industrious and hard working man up to his old age and seemed to be respected by everybody. Funeral took place on Sunday.

—Miss Flora F. Kurzenknabe and her little sister Susie, daughters of Prof. J. H. Kurzenknabe of Harrisburg are the guests of Mrs. Jonathan Harter. They expect to spend a few weeks in our midst. We hope their stay will be a pleasant one.

—Mrs. Weaver wishes to call the attention of the lady readers of the JOURNAL to her complete stock of spring and summer millinery goods. All the latest novelties and at prices within reach of all. Rooms on Penn street, opposite Hartman's foundry.

—Hon. John Dietrich, of Washington, D. C., a brother of Mrs. Sarah Harter, paid a visit to her last week, not having seen her for twenty-eight years. Our band was out serenading the old gentleman and was treated to a few pleasant remarks and to some of Mrs. Harter's best ice cream.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices. tf

—Read the new advertisement of D. S. Kaufman & Co. in another column. They will receive a large stock of new goods by the time this paper reaches its readers, and everybody ought to stop in at their place and examine their new supply. They propose to do a cash business and thereby be enabled to sell their goods at rock bottom prices.

—Too much of the good (?) got one of our young fellows into trouble last Friday. He was compelled to occupy the little prison over the race for a few hours to ponder over his misdoings. The effects of liquor prove an annoyance to the indulger as well as to the community in every case. Keep away from it, boys, if you would save your honor and reputation.

—Mr. William Hartman, on his trip to Bellefonte last Thursday, was thrown out of the wagon, one of the wheels having become detached from the vehicle. He was unconscious for some time, but escaped with slight injuries. His horse being blind walked toward the right side of the road and stopped. The incident occured about a mile on this side of Pleasant Gap.

A. CROWNOVER, Saulsbury, Pa., writes:

"J. A. McDonald,

Dear Sir:—Your Liver Pills are giving good satisfaction here, and there is quite a demand springing up for them.

Please send me three dozen boxes at once, as I am out and some of my customers won't have any other."

Comment needless. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

—Mr. J. C. Harper, and R. M. Magee, of Bellefonte, were in town yesterday, attending Mrs. G. W. Stover's funeral.

—A BOTTLE of Curtis' Carmelite Cordial should occupy the handy corner of every traveller's satchel. No prudent person will think of undertaking a journey involving changes of climate, diet and water, without first procuring a bottle. It never fails! It never disappoints! Money refunded in every case when a single bottle, as directed, fails to cure any case of cholera, dysentery, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, cramps, pains in the bowels, or any intestinal irritation.

REAPER DEATH.—On Sunday morning about 1 o'clock, Mrs. Maggie Stover, wife of Mr. G. W. Stover, of Millheim, was after a prolonged sickness, removed by death, in the 31st year of her age. She died with a good hope and has gone to reap her reward. A sorrow stricken husband and a bright little boy of about three years of age are her survivors. We tender our sincere sympathies to the bereaved husband and friends in their affliction. But while her husband loses the faithful companion of this life, and the community a kind and highly respected neighbor, she gains that eternal rest, which doeth away with all the pains and sorrows of this world.

The funeral took place yesterday forenoon attended by a large concourse of relations and friends. Her remains were interred in the Reformed cemetery at Aaronsburg.

Deceased was adaughter of Mr. John Harper, of Centre Hall, and a sister to Mr. J. C. Harper, of Bellefonte.

—DRUGGISTS as a rule are extremely jealous and careful of the honor of their profession, and are loth to praise a medicine which they do not from personal knowledge know to be a meritorious article. They all agree, however, that for smallness of dose, easiness to take, and effectiveness as a worm destroyer, McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders are the best and most desireable yermifuge in their stock, and do not hesitate to recommend them. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

—No organized efforts have been made as far as we know to celebrate Decoration day in Millheim. We presume however that our band will take the matter in hand, as they did last year, and hope the people will co-operate with them in the discharge of this duty.

Since writing the above the following programme has been fixed upon by the Millheim Cornet Band:

They will proceed to the cemetery of this place at 3 o'clock, p. m. for the purpose of decorating the graves of the soldiers. They invite everybody to accompany them to the graveyard and give their assistance by bringing flowers, etc.

At 5½ o'clock, p. m. the band will march to Aaronsburg, where they have been engaged to furnish proper music for the decoration ceremonies at that place.

—The four greatest and most desirable properties of a successful medicine are perfectly combined in McDonald's Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alterative. In malassimilation of food and dyspepsia its effects are speedy and happy. For disfiguring humors of scrofula and tetter, the loathsome sores of venereal diseases, the burning tortures of erysipelas, no other medicine can possibly equal it. As a spring medicine, perfect blood purifier, efficient and safe diuretic and aperient, it meets with gratifying favor from the medical profession and the people. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

—On Monday afternoon Mr. George Geisewite of Brushvalley barely escaped severe injuries or even death. He was driving a two-horse team and on his return from Coburn undertook to race with the hackdrivers of town. When they neared town he stood up in his wagon urging his horses to their utmost speed. The result was that he lost his balance—sorry to say he was a little unbalanced before—and tumbled backward out of the wagon box, falling under one of the front wheels, which passed over his breast. He was picked up and put on his wagon, not being hurt severely, as it seemed. It was lucky was that his wagon was empty, otherwise he would have been crushed by the weight. He took charge of the lines and drove home as well as he could.

WEST BRANCH CAMP.—The fifteenth annual session of the West Branch camp meeting will commence at Wayne Station, Clinton county, Tuesday August 12th, and continue until Friday, August 22d. The grounds will be opened for occupation on July 1st, and all who wish to occupy their tents at that time may do so. It will be the aim of the managers to make this session one of more than ordinary interest, and a great deal of work will be done to put the grounds in first class condition and to add to their actractiveness. The rent of tents and price of board will be materially reduced and everything possible accomplished to make the meeting a success. Excursion trains will be run on all the railroads, and orders for reduced rates can be had after July 1st. President Lewis Sheffer, of Williamsport, and Secretary J. B. Kinsloe, of Lock Haven, announce themselves as ready to give any information on the subject by mail or otherwise.

For the Journal.

—The entertainment held in the M. E. church at this place, on Saturday evening the 24th inst., by the Musical Association, with Prof. Kurzenknabe as musical conductor, proved to be a perfect success. Am sorry to state that the patronage was not as liberal as it should have been, the church not being comfortably filled. Hope hereafter if a like entertainment be held and for so good and noble a cause as for the benefit of our different Sunday schools, the house may be so well filled that standing room will be at a premium. The music rendered throughout the evening was very difficult, but nevertheless, through the careful and thorough training of their able instructor Prof. Kurzenknabe, it was well rendered, which gives much credit to both the class and the instructor.

The instrumental music furnished by Mr. George J. and John E. Kurzenknabe, was highly appreciated by the audience. They can be classed among the best musicians that ever visited our locality.

The choruses by the class were considered very good, and received much encomiums. The ones entitled "Hark! Appolo strikes the Lyre," "Hail! Smiling Morn" and the closing piece "March of the men of Harlech," were particullarly very much liked. The solos sang by Mrs. B. F. Hengst, Mrs. W. F. Colyer, Miss Jennie Deininger and Miss Minnie Hartman, were well rendered productions. The duets entitled "Holy Mother, Guide his footsteps," "Beautiful moonlight" and "Moonlight on the Rhine," were rich treats and were well received by the audience. The duet entitled "Jesus Saviour of my Soul," sang by Mr. John E. and Miss Fora F. Kurzenknabe, deserves special mention as one of the finest vocal executions we ever had the pleasure of listening too. The following quartettes were also highly spoken of: "Moonlight on the Lake," "Luna," "Trust her not" and the two male quartettes sang by Mr. A. R. Alexander, Dr. J. F. Harter, Mr. R. A. Bumiller and Mr. W. M. Hartman. The comic quartette "Jack & Jill" was very much liked. I will close by wishing the Association much success in the future. Hoping they will continue in their good work, and thus by earnest labor of its members improve from time to time, so as to make each succeeding entertainment still better, and consequently still more highly appreciated by its patrons.

A SPECTATOR.

Woodward Items.

Hol. Crouse paid Woodward a visit on Sunday.

C. W. Hosterman's honse is almost ready for the plasterers.

C. W. Burd, of Aaronsburg, was in our village a few days fixing up the old sewing machines. He represents the Singer Sewing Machine Company.

Woodward can boast of a telephone line from the St. Elmo to Kinney's intersection. Cannot give the name of the exchange agent.

R. F. Vonada was in town on Friday with his huckster wagon.

Noah is out taking orders for "Eby's Best." Come Bill.

"Expresser" is our boss fisherman.

Society has gone under.

The singing class is doing finely under the leadership of Prof. Snyder.

Samuel Williams moved from Martha Furnace to Woodward. Got homesick.

Mr. Samuel Motz was very unfortunate on Wednesday. He was on the spring wagon trying to put on the hind seat when the horse made a jerk throwing Mr. M. out headforemost. He received some severe bruises about the head. PEDRO.

Lake, Stark Co., Ohio.
Saturday, May 24, 1884.

Mr. Editor:

If you will spare me a little space in your paper I will endeavor to write something of interest to your many readers. I am holding forth in Summit County, Northern part of Ohio, in which lies the main part of the renowned country, which I will attempt to describe. It is a broken or rolling country, slopes toward the great Lakes, and one of the most fertile spots in the United States. All its expanse is excellent for farming, with the exception of the low-lands or swamps. As they are covered with a heavy growth of bunch-grass, they cannot be excelled as grazing lands. Ohio is well watered by springs, small and numerous lakes and streams. The people are supplied with plenty of wood, all kinds of oak, hickory, maple, ash, button-wood, chestnut, tamarack, &c. The soil is of a rich, black, sandy loam from one to four feet deep, resting in most places on a clay subsoil. As it is not affected as soon by drought, as the soil of Pennsylvania, it seldom fails to produce abundant crops. Wheat yields (as they tell me) from twenty to fifty bushels per acre. Oats from thirty to seventy-five, corn from one hundred to one hundred and fifty. Wheat promises an abundant harvest for this year, oats looks well, corn is making little headway so far as the cool nights were detrimental to the growth of that cereal, the last few days were nice and warm, temperature being 92. on "Ascension Day." All kinds of vegetables do well here, fruit is promising a very large crop, except peaches. Ohios net-work of Rail Roads the many navigable rivers and on the North the large Lakes, can not fail to make it a great market. Society is very good, there being an excellent system of public schools, having nine month public school in place of five or six as we have in Centre Co. There are three school directors for every school in the country. The manufacture of stoneware Sewer pipes cannot be excelled by any state, and it is a curiosity to a stranger's eye. The old "Buckeye" is also ahead in the manufacture of farming implements. Time, space and evening shade will not permit me to say any more. But, young men, take Beecher's advice. He in his recent lecture in New York said "If I was a young man I would go West.

Yours truly,
E. E. BRESSLER.

COBURN BRIEFS.

We are sorry to lose our pleasant friend Mr. Byron Houtz, who had been clerking in Grenninger's store for some time, but has now accepted a position at the Millheim hotel.

A stranger passing through our town recently remarked that our Iron Bridge, the two handsome hotel cabs and the numerous wagons around the stores and depot at train time gives Coburn quite a prominent appearance. And so it does.

Andy Stover's house is now being painted and looks fine.

Railroad ties are being transported from here to the upper part of the extended road, which almost reaches Centre Hall now.

Farmers have planted their corn and rejoice that they will not need replant it.

The scenery around here is beautiful, nature having put on her green spring suit.

Wheat is still coming in. A proof that we have plenty and to spare.

The Canker Worm.

As often as the season comes round we feel it to be our duty to urge upon all the importance of protecting the apple, cherry and elm trees from the depredations of the canker worm. Already this enemy covers a wide territory and is yearly extending. This ought not to be, because there is a remedy, which, if faithfully applied, will not only prevent this pest from extending over any more territory, but annihilate him where he has already made his appearance.

If a law could be made and enforced, compelling every person to protect his trees, it would be but a few years before the canker worm would be entirely conquered; but as long as there is one or two persons in each town who will not protect their trees at all, and considerable numbers who afford only a partial protection, so long will the faithful have to continue the fight, or be content to do without apples, and see their beautiful shade trees stripped of their foliage.

If the only protection was through expensive patent tree protectors, there might be some excuse for those of limited means for not protecting their trees, but as an orchard can be fully protected by tarred paper, and some one of the different preparations of sticky substances, at a very slight cost in money, and but a few hours' labor to each twenty-five trees, there really seems to be no good excuse for raising canker worms to flood a whole neighborhood.

It is true, to fully protect an orchard with tarred paper, it requires constant watchfulness, and some perseverance, qualities which all fruit growers should possess. The work must be commenced in the autumn, and whenever during the winter the frost is out of the ground, and the weather is warm, the paper must receive a fresh covering, and when March comes, the covering must be repeated as often as the material ceases to be soft enough to prevent the grubs from crawling over it. If the work be continued until the buds expand there will be no danger of any injury from the canker worms.

We would urge upon every owner of an apple, cherry, or elm tree to see to it that no canker worms find their way up the trunks of the trees.

Each One Had an Excuse.

The other day a Brooklyn temperance man concluded he would take a drink, and went into a saloon. To his horror he met a friend at the bar who was also the kind of a man who "never touched liquor, sir." Each felt a little better, however, when he divined the reason of the other's presence.

Just as they said "good morning," and were sliding up to the bar, a third party of similar abstemious pretentions came in and would have backed out, but the others saw him.

"Ah, ah, gentlemen, will you take something?" said number one. "The fact is, I suffered all night with a terrible cold. It was simply terrible, and I thought I'd take something to warm me up."

Number two hesitated a moment and then said: "Well, I don't care if I do. My rheumatism has been hurting me awfully for a week. I believe I'll join you."

Number three then coughed, and then put his hand on his side, then hesitated a moment and finally said: "Well, I guess I'll take one too. My wife's mother says her corns hurt her so this kind of weather that she can hardly walk."

A Soldier's Bright Idea.

One day soon after Pope's defeat at second Bull Run and Chantilly, a private soldier belonging to an Ohio regiment sought an interview with his Captain, and announced that he had a plan for a military campaign, which must certainly result in crushing out the rebellion. The officer very naturally inquired for particulars, but the soldier refused to reveal them, and asked for a chance to lay his plans before Pope himself. After some delay he was given a pass to headquarters. He did not get to see Pope, but after the chief of staff had coaxed and promised and threatened for a quarter of an hour the Buckeye stood up and replied:

"Well, sir, my plan is for John Pope and Bob Lee to swap commands, and if we don't lick the South inside of sixty days you may shoot me for a patent hay-fork swindler!"

When he returned to camp he was naturally asked what success he met with, and he ruefully replied:

"Wall, they had a plan of their own."

"What was it?"

"Why, they took me out and booted me for a mile and a half."—Detroit Free Press.

ELIXIR
For the cure of
Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.
It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well.
